New Chemicals Interview

Subject: Reporter requesting interview with EPA on new chemicals program & requesting numerical figures to illustrate status of reviews

Requestor: Pat Rizzuto, BNA

I have two requests: 1st an interview with Wendy Cleland-Hamnet, Jeffrey Morris, or other appropriate senior OCSPP or OPPT official regarding the new chemicals program. The interview is for a special report giving me some flexibility as to when, but I would like to have the interview no later than May 22. It could be in person or by phone, although in person would be ideal.

Ex. 5 - Deliberative Process

I. Illustrative questions I need to ask an EPA official (final questions may vary as I speak with more stakeholders prior to my interview with EPA)

1) Do you think the number of PMNs, in particular, but also MCANs that are under review by OPPT's new chemicals program is a problem?

2) What health or environmental issues are raising questions as EPA reviews the new chemicals and how is that similar or different than prior to Lautenberg?

3) Prior to Lautenberg, I'm told the agency often tied data requests to production volume, for example, it would let a chemical enter commerce but required data once production volume hit particular targets. Now, I'm told the EPA is more often wanting the data before the chemical is allowed to enter commerce. What's EPA's perspective?

4) I've heard industry speakers say Lautenberg codified new chemical review practices the agency already had. Is that an accurate description?

5) What are the questions raised by Lautenberg, requirements the EPA must meet or presumptions about new chemicals being made that are causing the logjam?

6) What solutions are you considering?
